The laugh often comes in at the wrong place at the theater. It is sometimes the effect of whisky and sometimes of the want of appreciation. It is sometimes annoying to those who are interested in the play, and now and then amusing. On Monday night, during the last scene of Lucretia Borgia, when Lucretia and Genaro were dying, and when a solemn silence should have prevailed, a big jolly personage laid back in his seat and laughed outright as if he was blowing off to keep from bursting with merri ment. The effect was ludicrous.

from Washington.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 -- A special to the Post The news from the front is important. This morning the whole army is in motion towards Fredericksburg What is the plan of operation after Fredericksburg shall be held as a base of supplies, does not appear. The condition of the army is such that gives its General great confidence in the result of the next battle. We have more troops than the rebel Generals, but it is by no means impossible that

Lee may outnumber Burnside when he stops to With Fredericksburg as the headquarters of our army, it will be comparatively easy to furnish it with supplies by way of Aquia creek and the railroad from that place to Fredericksburg. The War Department will bereafter insist that substitutes will be compelled to enter the old regiments, to remain for nine months, and with this understanding the Government will prefer substitutes to the original drafted men. It is believed that an attack upon Charleston ington street, between Meridian and Pennsylvania will not long be postponed. The rebels have been making preparations for the attack several weeks, and, if they are to be believed, will not surrender the city simply because it may be at the mercy of one of our iron clads. The inhabitants will be ordered to leave, and, if necessary, the city will be consigned to flames rather than be surrendered. So far as I can learn both the army and navy desire that the rebels should take precisely this course, feeling that it would be fit and proper that this treasonable city should be

> The preparations for attack are so perfect that there can be no doubt that one or more iron clads will succeed in approaching the town, at least within shelling distance.
